DAV

(DAYANAND ANGLO VEDIC) DAV Movement History and Philosophy

The DAV movement started in 1886 after the death of Swami Dayanand Saraswati in 1883. The first step was to form DAV College Trust & Management Society and then established first institution - DAV School at Lahore (Now in Pakistan) on June 1, 1886 with Hans Raj Ji as honorary Headmaster.

The main objective of DAV Institutions is to impart such education which is blend of modernity with tradition to children so as to help them imbibe a sense of deep patriotism and pride in their ancient culture and civilization, still in them a disciplined outlook deeply dedicated to the pursuit of knowledge. DAV institutions aim at creating environment truly conducive to the development of the child mentally, physically and spiritually.

Special emphasis is laid on the development of well-rounded personality based on character, initiative and courtesy. Training in leadership and sharing responsibility is an important part of the DAV School's academic and co-curricular programme.
